CELL PHONES FOR SOLDIERS

"I would like to tell you of Denver 1080's drive to help the soldiers overseas," reports Hilary Phelan. "An organization called Cell Phones for Soldiers was founded by two children wanting to help the soldiers overseas with their large cell phone bills. This immediately caught our attention. This organization collects old cell phones, which are then sold for recycling. The cash is used to buy calling cards for the military. So far, $60,000 worth of calling cards have been sent to our troops."

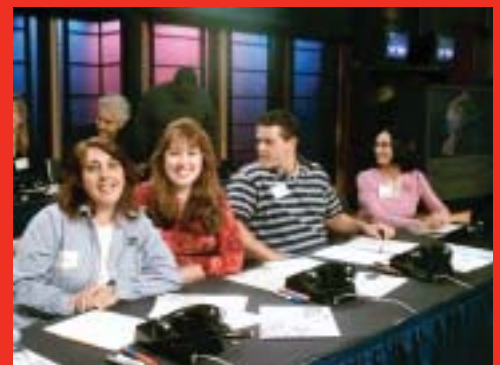

Hilary continues, "Our employees were phenomenal in helping our efforts, bringing in old cell phones from themselves, their family and their friends. So much so, that we gathered a full box of cell phones to donate. The Denver 1080, One Team, One Dream, continues to unite."

Glenn Mohs, Manager of Store 118 in Greenfield, Wis., was kind enough to forward the following note: "My name is SGT Cecil White and my mother came in and you donated some pencils. I received them in the mail yesterday and I wanted to give you a little note saying 'Thank you.' The kids in Iraq really appreciated the gift. I have enclosed a picture of two of the children that received a package of pencils." Noted District 38 Manager Jim Redalen, "I guess you never know when a small act of kindness will be recognized and appreciated by people from afar."

In Saskatoon, Saskatchewan, after Store 716 won the Shrink Tips contest for the fifth year in a row, the employees chose to donate a portion of their winnings back to the community. Deciding that the worst thing that could happen at Christmas was to have a loved one in the hospital, they purchased gifts for the children in the Pediatrics Ward at the Royal University Hospital.
